

Elliot Traher
District Conservationist,
Idaho

Elliot is currently the District Conservation for Cassia and Minidoka County for the State of Idaho. He holds a Bachelors of Science in Environmental Soil/Water Science from Utah State University. He began working with NRCS as a Soil Conservationist in 2002; in 2004 he took on a collateral position as assistant Toolkit/PRS coordinator, and then was promoted to the position of District Conservationist for Bannock County in 2005. Kevin have spent his career in Idaho, a soil conservationist in Idaho Falls, Idaho for three years, a District Conservationist in Pocatello, Idaho for three years, and the last year as a District Conservationist in Burley/Rupert, Idaho. He also has been a part of the NRCS' National Facilitator Cadre for the last three years.